"These paintings don't come to life without the viewer."

- Andreas Nottebohm

Andreas Nottebohm was born in Eisenach, Germany in 1944. From 1965 to 1969, he studied at the Academy of Fine Arts in Munich under surrealist painter Mac Zimmerman. In 1968, he studied etching at J. Friedlaender workshop in Paris, France. Nottebohm first visited the United States for a one-man show in 1978. After traveling throughout the United States for six months, he chose to make the San Francisco Bay area his home. NASA has commissioned Nottebohm to create more than fifteen major works, including official paintings to commemorate the first launch of the space shuttle Columbia in 1981. He has had over one hundred one-man shows in Europe and the United States and his work has been featured in museums and galleries around the world including the permanent collections of the Crocker Museum of Art in California, Nevada Art Museum, and Smithsonian Institutions.
